THE ATOCHA MISSION. Since Mr. Polk restored Santa Anna to head the Mexican army, to rouse the dormant ener gies of the nation, to unite her factions to concentrate her hostilities against the United States. and to sacrifice the lives of thousands of our patriotic people, the administration has hesitated at no step, however reckless or extreme.— Encouraged by the hosannahs of a subsidized press, which, with one accord, applauded this act of bold and barefaced treason in time of war, they have gone on in a career of outrage apon the constitution, of violation to the laws, and of insult to the country, These excesses have been continued until the current has turned, and the divine justice of retribution seems now to have begun its progress. Deliberate treachery entails punishment upon the traitor. There is no probability of escaping it, even in the highest position to which the consent of society can exalt the worst and meanest of men. The recent popular elections have demonstrate zed that the administration has not only forfeitted the confidence and respect of the country. but that its political quackery, and its President's war, has been repudiated from one end of the Union to the other. Even Virginia, the Gibraltar of locofocoism, which withstood the tornado of 1840, has abandoned her idols and proven that "the way of the transgressor

Next to the treasonable restoration of Santa Anna, the employment of his pimp and prote gee, Atocha, on a seni-official mission to Mexico, is one of the most daring indignities ever offered to the American people. The official paper of Mexico informs us of the terms, that this person is represented to have tendered on behalf of the United States, as a basis of peace. The parallel of 26 degrees to the Pacific-fifteen millions in cash-no indemnity for the war, and an army of ten thousand men to mainrain the boundary.

While the administration has directed its min ions abroad to deny the authority of Atocha to propose these terms of accommodation, the President's paper here has not yet dared to affirm that he was not instructed verbally to make such representations to one of the parties in Mexico. It has attempted to be sure, to extricate the government by averring that he was not appointed an "American Plenipotentiary," though it is candid enough to admit, he was the "bearer of a despatch." Now, we under take to assert, that he was possessed of the views of our gov's, and was sent to Mexico with no other view than to bring over by bribery or otherwise, the most formidable interest into pacification, promising our support to maintain its authority. The despatch which he bore was only a disguise to his errand and the means by which his services were requited out of the Secret Service fund of the Department of State. Now that the experiment has failed, and the confidential agent of Mr. Polk has been publicly disgraced, it may suit the purposes of the administration to put off the responsibility, and disown the connection. It shall not succeed in their confederate up to the indignation and scorn of the country.

And who is this Atocha that has so engross ed the favor and the confidence of the Executive? We know of him in Mexico as one of the brokers or inferior agents of Santa Anna. and in the United States, according to the Delta, a journal friendly to the administration, as a member of the night watch of one of the municipalities.

These are the sort of characters who are en trusted with the confidential missions of our in Masonic order, as follows: diplomacy-who bring with them no reputation for honor and integrity, and who appear under circumstances of the gravest suspicion. There was no "Democrat" or citizen in our country. it appears, in whom the administration could sufficiently confide to bear a despatch to Mexico, or rather to bear terms for the adjustment of a treaty. A Mexican and one too, notoriously the ally, if not now the secret agent of Santa Anna, must be preferred over all their heads, and have showered upon him the favors and the confidence of those in power. Loco focoism may submit to such outrages, but thank God there is a party identified with the interests and the reputation of the country, that will resist such treacherous collusion, cost what it may. The administration in the course of this war has done every thing for Mexico, and everything against the United States. Its policy and its principles are Mexican, and its sympathies as well as its'services, are entirely with Santa Anna. We cannot express our opinion of the present administration more exactly than in the words of Sir Rich. Steele, "that we are governed by a set of drivellers, whose folly takes away all dignity from distress, and makes even calamity ridiculous."

NOMINATING CONVENTION. - The Boston Whig considers the nomination of General Taylor a Southern movement, and made with a determination to dispense with the interposition of a Convention. Our contemporary may not be far from right in the latter supposition. The PEOPLE will nominate General Taylor without the medium of any Convention. Such a body may meet to confirm the nomination if necessary.

A PATENT RIGHT QUESTION .- A curious question under the law of patents has recently been argued before the U. S. Circuit Court in New Jersey. The patentee of a certain improvement applied for an injunction against a party who was using the improvement without leave, which application was resisted by the latter on the ground that the improvement was in part a piracy from a patent of his own. That is, he had a patent for a certain machine; the applicant took this machine without leave, made a partial improvement on it, and obtained a patent for the whole; and he contended that, as the applicant had stolen his invention in the first place, he could not come before the Court with an equitable claim for redress when that which was honestly his own was stolen in return.

The decision of the Court on this novel question will be looked for with interest.

GEN. TAYLOR ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE

Lieut. Corwine writes to the Cincinnati Chronicle, and gives the following interesting sketch of General Taylor on the battle field of Buena Vista:

"By way of illustrating an important characteristic of General Taylor, to wit, determination. I will briefly relate a scene that occurred on the hattle ground of Buena Vista, dur ing the battle of the 23d. At a time when th fortunes of the day seemed extremely problematical-when many on our side even despaired of success -old Rough and Ready, as he is not inaptly styled, whom, you must know is short, fat and dumpy in person, with remarkable short legs-took his position on a commanding height, overlooking the two armies. This was perhaps about three, or, may be, four o'clock in the afternoon. The encmy, who had succeeded in gaining an advantageous position, made a fierce charge upon our column, and fought with a desperation that seemed for a time to insure success to their arms. The struggle lasted for some time. All the while, General Taylor was a silent spectator, his countenance exhibiting the most anxious solicitude, alternating between hope and despondency. His staff, perceiving his perilous situation, (for he was exposed to the fire of the enemy) approached him and implored him to retire. He heeded them not. His thoughts were intent upon victory or defeat. He knew not at this moment what the result would be. He felt that that engagement was to decide his fate. He had given all his orders and selected his position. If the day went against him he was irretrievably lost; if for him, he could rejoice in common with his countrymen, at the triumphant success of our arms.

"Such seemed to be his thoughts-his determination. And when he saw the enemy give way and retreat in the utmost confusion, h gave free vent to his pent up feelings. His right leg was quickly disengaged from the pummel of the saddle, where it had remained during the whole of the fierce encounter-his arms, which were calmly folded over his breast relaxed their hold-his feet fairly danced in the stirrups, and his whole body was in motion. It was a moment of the most exciting and intense interest. His face was suffused with tears. The day was won-the victory complete-his little army saved from the dis grace of a defeat, and he could not refrain from weeping for joy at what had seemed to so many, but a moment before, as an impossible result. Long may the noble and kind-hearted old hero live to enjoy the honors of his nume rous brilliant victories, and many other honors that a grateful country will ere long bestor, upon him."

A Wonderful Negro. The Richmond Chiro. nicle gives an account of a negro boy about 21 years of age, belonging to Mr. McLernine, of Alexandria, whose power in collecting numbers is remarkable. His intellect being of the lowest order in every thing except where the power of computing numbers, which is unlimited by figures. The most difficult sums in any of the grand divisions of arithmetic and even those involving the nicest calcula tions of mathematics, are solved by him with perfect accuracy, and in an incredible short space of time.
